

Introduction

iBurst provides you with continued high-speed connectivity for your corporate or personal needs, through broadband internet and email services. Within the area of the base station closest to you, you can maintain this connection in an always-on mode. You no longer need to wait until you get to a place which provides connectivity. Always available. As the services on the Internet expand to include all aspects of life, many are only at their full potential if they're available as soon as your need arises. Because you can access information at any time with iBurst, you no longer need to plan ahead or guess what information to download to local storage to use later. Similarly, any data you receive while on the move, such as digital photos, can be transferred immediately to the online environment for storage or for others to access. The end result is a unique user experience of the freedom that the iBurst service provides. It'll be very hard for you to go back to an existence where the online world is not always available at your fingertips.

Main Features

The iBurst Access Bridge provides fixed mode connectivity. It looks similar to a traditional modem. It has a connection to mains power, a small extending aerial and ports allowing connectivity through Ethernet or USB. This allows fixed broadband connection benefits with added portability, allowing it to be disconnected by unplugging it from the mains and moving it to a new location to be reconnected by powering up the iBurst Access Bridge again.

Movement is easier than the fixed line connection whether between rooms or cities. It can be connected to a single computer or attached to a local area network or a wireless network for shared access between devices in the home or office.
